GLOBAL HONEY BAR!

Join the Apimondia Congress in Copenhagen and visit the Global Honey Bar!

The biggest honey tasting buffet in the world with exotic and interesting honeys from all over the world.

More than 40 countries from all over the world is bringing their most delicious and treasured honeys to Copenhagen, both honey from Melifera bees and a lot of exciting honey types from stingless bee-species. There, the honey will be presented for tasting for all participants of the congress!

On top of that, each honey will get its very own website, where you can read the story of this particular honey and the bees and beekeeping behind it.

The three Scandinavian hosts, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, have their own section of the honey bar called the Scandinavian Honey Bar, also filled with delicious honey for tasting.

The Global Honey Bar - Every taste is a journey!

OLDEST BEE HIVE!

A surprising discovery has delighted scientists and beekeeping enthusiasts alike.

One of the world's oldest preserved beehives has been found inside the trunk of an oak tree in southeastern Poland.

The 1,300-year-old man-made apiary was discovered by sawmill workers in the small town of Leżajsk as they prepared to chop up the tree to turn into boards.

But after cutting the trunk open, a woodworker spotted a honeycomb, traces of honey and the remains of bees.

This "Oldest Bee Hive" will be exhibited in the main foyer during the 49th Apimondia Congress!
